

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The Save Sibaya Project combines social and conservation work with wildlife encounters and cultural interaction. This 25-day program is designed for people between the ages of 18 -30 years looking to make a difference in the local Zulu community. This year the main focus of our social initiative is to work with the Ezinqeni community to renovate and upgrade the existing community center. The center is currently underutilized and in disrepair, but upon completion it will host a mobile medical clinic, an after-school center, and a kindergarten. Volunteers will assist with the renovation of the center, and volunteers with special skills (ie language skills, sports, IT,) will have the opportunity to work with local children in the after-school program. Volunteers can also help coordinate playgroups and look after children in the kindergarten.

The Save Sibaya conservation efforts are focused on building an accurate map of the area and developing a species list to then launch a tourist awareness campaign and focus resources on protecting this unique environment. Save Sibaya volunteers will also have the chance to see the 'Big Five', get hands-on experience with conservation, gain an insight on traditional life in Zululand, and have a full 'Bush & Beach' experience while learning about the environment of Lake Sibaya.

LOCATION

The base camp is approximately 15 kilometers from Sodwana Bay and Mbazwana in Northern Kwa-Zulu Natal, South Africa. We are in a remote corner of this wilderness in traditional Zululand, walking distance from some of the most idyllic and isolated beaches in Africa and overlooking Lake Sibaya, South-Africa's largest fresh-water lake, teeming with hippo, crocodile and many other smaller mammal and bird species. Most of this area is declared a UNESCO World Heritage site for its natural beauty and bio-diversity and forms part of the Isimangaliso Wetlands Park. After the Kruger, this is the second largest wilderness area/national park in South Africa and home to over fifty mammal species, including the big five and over 400 bird species. A large part of the park is a marine reserve and offers some of the best scuba diving in the world.

PROGRAM ITINERARY

Week 1:

Volunteers will be met at King Shaka International airport in Durban and transferred to our Lake Sibaya base camp. The first week in Sibaya will be spent at the Ezinqeni Community Center coordinating various activities with the local children and supporting ongoing community projects. Participants are encouraged to take initiative with ideas and educational endeavors.

The first weekend, volunteers will be taken on safari in Mkhuze National Park, where they will begin to learn first-hand about African wildlife and conservation. Guided safari, all meals, and one night accommodation are included. Sunday will be a rest day, and transport to Sodwana Bay will be available for participation in the many activities available.

Week 2:

This week volunteers will continue their work at the Community Center coordinating various activities with the local children and supporting ongoing community projects. One evening will be spent at the lake to enjoy sunset and the local wildlife.

The second weekend we will head to St. Lucia, in the heart of the UNESCO world heritage site, where we will enjoy a visit to a Cheetah Rehabilitation Center, a hippo tour by boat in the Isimangaliso Wetlands Park, a visit to a traditional Zulu village and market, and a safari in Hluhluwe National Park. Participants will overnight in St. Lucia, heading back to our base camp by Saturday evening. The trip includes activities and accommodation in St. Lucia, but excludes meals. Sunday will be a rest day and transports to the local beaches will be available.

Week 3:

During the third week participants will be right at home with their work at the Community Center and going full speed with their project of interest with the local children.

The final weekend, participants will enjoy time at two of the regions most idyllic beaches – 9 Mile and Mabibi. There will be time for the many activities on offer in Sodwana Bay, including scuba diving, snorkeling, micro-light flights, surfing, fishing, or whale watching. Sunday, volunteers will have the option to participate in an additional safari at one of the nearby National Parks.

Final Days:

The last few days will be spent finalizing work on projects, saying goodbyes to the community, and summarizing work done during the program so that efforts are able to be continued by future volunteers. Transfer to King Shaka International Airport or a central location in Durban will be provided on the final day of the program. Timing will depend upon flight times; in some cases an overnight in Durban might be required (included in price).

REQUIREMENTS

As a program participant you will be expected to contribute ideas, engage with the other volunteers, and actively partake in activities. During work days (typically Monday through Thursday), a minimum of 5 hours social work will be expected. The afternoon will be available for writing, data analysis, research, and exploration. Evenings will be left at leisure when other activities are not planned. Students are encouraged to bring educational materials, toys, used clothes, and any other donations you think will improve the well being of those living in the community. If you have a specialty or interest in a particular field, please let us know!

RECREATIONAL ACTIVITIES

There is also time for recreation during the Save Sibaya program.

Weekend activities, described above, might include a visit to a Cheetah rehabilitation Center, introduction to Zulu culture at a traditional Zulu village, game drives at Mkhuze National Park, Hluhluwe National Park and Tembe Elephant Reserve, a canoe safari on Muzi Pans, or a boat safari in St. Lucia World Heritage Site.

During leisure time, our staff are happy to organize various activities offered in and around Sodwana Bay, which include scuba diving, snorkeling, visits to local beaches, restaurants, quad bike tours, micro-light flights, and more. Lake Sibaya is just a short walk from the camp and is ideal for afternoon hikes, picnics or sunset cocktails. All activities are subject to availability, and are flexible based on student interests.

ABOUT THE SAVE SIBAYA PROJECT

The Save Sibaya Project began as an effort to catalog and conserve the flora and fauna in the Lake Sibaya region. Much of the area forms part of the Isimangaliso Wetlands Park, which is a UNESCO World Heritage site for its natural beauty and bio-diversity, however much of the area remains unprotected. Lake Sibaya, South Africa's largest freshwater lake, is threatened by development, excessive poaching, and reduction of water levels due to regional consumption. The goal of Save Sibaya is to build a comprehensive database of remaining species, create a Sibaya Visitor Guide, and launch a tourist awareness campaign to garner interest in the area. Save Sibaya's social initiatives includes working with the Ezinqeni community to renovate and upgrade the existing community center to host a mobile medical clinic, and for future use as an after-school center and kindergarten. Our hope is that one day soon, sustainable tourism will uplift the community, conserve this precious natural resource, and allow the remaining wildlife to flourish.
